24 APRIL-1 MAY WORLD IMMUNIZATION WEEK

Vaccines are made of substances that resemble disease causing microorganism or weakened microbes that provide active acquired immunity to particular diseases. The only known protection method for diseases such as Influenza, Hepatitis B, Measles, Rubella, Pertussis, Tetanus, Chickenpox, Hepatitis A and Meningitis is vaccination. As a result of vaccination one of the most commonly seen types of cancer in women; cervical cancer is now classified as a preventable disease. Vaccination programs prevent the death of approximately 2-3 billion children each year. Diseases such as smallpox are eradicated thanks to vaccination programs.

Every year 19.5 million babies cannot be vaccinated because of social, cultural or economic reasons. In many developing regions, vaccines cannot be effectively provided to children and in some developed countries anti-vaccination campaigns and biases prevent children being vaccinated at the correct times and intervals.

To this day, no hypothesis of the anti-vaccination discourse which appeared for commercial reasons has been scientifically proven. It was claimed by anti- Mumps Measles & Rubella (MMR) vaccination campaigns that its vaccine causes autism. Studies carried out show no difference in the number of autism cases between children who received and didn't receive MMR vaccination.

It is not legal or ethical for people to turn to vaccination alternatives such as 'Homeopathy' or other experimental methods. The side-effects of the influenza vaccine is another point of dispute. The possible side-effects of this vaccine are a lot less serious than the health problems an individual might face if they become sick. According to 2017's data, globally over 650 thousand people have died of influenza related reasons.

The World Health Organization has recommended that next year influenza vaccinations are given to a large part of the public especially children over 6 months old and those who are pregnant.

Adults and individuals who are going to regions with epidemics need to renew their vaccinations at certain intervals. In our country it is recommended that Hepatitis B, Diphtheria-Pertussis- Tetanus and Chickenpox (if it hasn't been contracted) vaccines are received at certain intervals. The HPV vaccine for cervical cancer can be a lifesaving precaution for young women who don't carry the disease.

The "Efficiency Challenge Electric Vehicle" is an annual competition for students organized by TÜBİTAK since 2005. With a variety of different challenges, the main objective of the competition is to increase the local production of gadgets that use alternative energy, develop products with high added value, increase the awareness of the participants and ensure that they follow the all the innovations regarding the field, support participants to gain experience and in this way, increase the country's awareness on the use of the alternative energy sources.

More than 10,000 university students were reached within the scope of the competition. A group of young engineers with the knowledge and experience needed to strengthen the potential and encourage the industrial applications were brought together.

Important Work Being Carried Out By Electric Vehicle Development Centre At EMU

Vice Chair of the Eastern Mediterranean University (EMU) Engineering Faculty, Mechanical Engineering Department and Mechatronics Program Coordinator Asst. Prof. Dr. Davut Solyalı answered questions on the newly formed Electric Vehicle Development Centre (EVDC) and its projects.

Can You Provide Some Information About The Electric Vehicle Development Center?

The Electric Vehicle Development Centre (EVDC) operating within the scope of EMU was founded with the aims of developing advanced electric vehicles and related technologies, incorporating them to the university and providing opportunities for bigger, more prestigious projects that will be developed in a sustainable structure. The center also aims to develop national and international collaborations as well as carry out research, application and development projects.

Can You Touch Upon Your Projects?

We started with a three wheeled bicycle project. In early 2017 we completed the ALIZAVRA project. During the same year we competed in Electromobile 2017 with our electric vehicle project Z-ZERO where we obtained our first international success. With ALIZAVRA we aimed to increase the awareness of engineering students in the university, leading to their involvement in such projects. I believe that we were successful. We are preparing for the Electromobile 2018 competition with the crew from the Z-ZERO electric vehicle project. Our new project is titled "MEDITERRANEAN SHARK". All of our work and projects are progressing in line with the vision of EMU.

Can You Provide Some Information about the Electromobile 2018 competition?

The "Efficiency Challenge Electric Vehicle" is an annual competition for students organized by TÜBİTAK since 2005. With a variety of different challenges, the main objective of the competition is to increase the local production of gadgets that use alternative energy, develop products with high added value, increase the awareness of the participants and ensure that they follow the all the innovations regarding the field, support participants to gain experience and in this way, increase the country's awareness on the use of the alternative energy sources. This year's "Efficiency Challenge Electric Vehicle" competition will take place at the Kocaeli Gulf Race Track between 6th and 12th August 2018. We will be enhancing our design as we want to be in contention further improving our performance from last year's competition Electromobile 2017. We want to gain strength and obtain further achievements at Electromobile 2018.

Can You Provide Some Information about Your Crew? What Could Be Done By Those Who Want To Join?

We have a very young and dynamic crew comprising of engineering students. We are planning to organize a special offer for those who want to join the team. We are going to ask those interested in joining the team to create a vehicle related project. After jury evaluation we plan to add to the team those successful in the categories of Mechanics, Electrical-Electronic, Mechatronics, Computer Programming and Design. We will be releasing a statement on the matter very soon.

Can You Provide Some Information about the Team and "Mediterranean Shark"?

Our team's name is "ADA" and our electric vehicle is "Mediterranean Shark". "Mediterranean Shark" was designed, developed and produced in EMU laboratories through the university's own means.

As the only participating institution from the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus, EMU will take part in the new 'Autonomous Vehicle Category' of the competition organized by TÜBİTAK in its 14th year with the "ADA" team and "Mediterranean Shark" vehicle. The new race category aims to encourage students to work on self-driving vehicle technologies. This race aims for university students from different disciplines to gain theoretical and practical skills relating to electric vehicles and autonomous characteristics.

What is The Importance of the Project?

The project is important for raising society awareness as it is indicator that production can take place on the island. With sufficient support as well as the correct infrastructure and crew it is possible to produce and gain a profit. There are a number of problems on the island relating to the training of engineers and technical staff. Therefore, we aim to visit high schools and middle schools to inform students about our projects with the goal of them gravitating towards the fields of science and engineering. The projects that aim to help our youth gravitate towards these fields are of top importance.

Noting that before coming to EMU she applied for universities in Dubai and Florida, USA Rahama Sadau stated: "I had my worries during the selection process because there were many possible distractions as a result of my profession at the locations of these universities. It wouldn't be very logical for me to study in Florida or Dubai. At that point I was searching the internet and came across EMU. After receiving information about the island and TRNC I saw that it had very calm and nice atmosphere. Once I realized that EMU is placed amongst the world's best universities on the rankings I applied immediately".

"I Brought my Siblings with me"

Rahama Sadau who is a part of the Human Resources Management Program at the School of Business and Finance stated: "I was very happy when I got accepted. We are currently happy here." Rahama Sadau also provided information about Nigeria's film industry equivalent to Hollywood known as Nollywood. "Nollywood is the world's fastest growing leisure industry. Being a part of the industry that has found Africa's important talents and produced many cultural films was my childhood dream. I always wanted to be an actress. Where I come from you need to work a lot harder to fulfill your dreams. It is not easy to stay in the industry, especially as a girl because you face many cultural obstacles. Families don't want you to be in sight. If my mum hadn't given me her blessing, I wouldn't be where I am today. Therefore, I would like to express my gratitude to my mum."

"I am very Happy to be at EMU"

Expressing that she is very happy to be in the TRNC studying at EMU, Rahama Sadau stated that she is very fond of the university campus and Famagusta.
